Intellexer Categorizer is a desktop software for automatic document categorization, it automatically classifies documents and assigns to user categories based on the easy training stage. Explore various sections Intellexer Categorizer allows you to organize large amount of documents, distribute documents by folders, find similar documents and solve various hands-on tasks. The first thing that you need to do after launching the application is to create a catalogue structure and define the categories. Etalon documents are selected for each category / subcategory on the base of which Categorizer forms a so-called fingerprint. Each category corresponds to the fingerprint, which is a set of main concepts (or terms) and relations between them, extracted from the etalon categories. Documents for categorization are parsed by Linguistic Processor which extracts syntactic and semantic relations from them. More features and tools All documents presented in the form of semantic tree are compared with the fingerprints of each category. As a result of comparison, Intellexer Categorizer estimates the proximity degree for each document and category. The application assists you in automatic classification of different documents into corresponding user-defined categories. Intellexer Categorizer successfully solves the problem of information overload and is ideal for enterprise content/knowledge management. All in all, Intellexer Categorizer is a very nice desktop software for automatic document categorization. Desktop users:...
